

The Heart of Teaching: Reflective Practice in Teaching and Learning

ONLINE LEARNING

5 WEEK COURSE

DIGITAL CERTIFICATE

With greater demands being placed on educators and students in Higher Education, the need to understand strong relational pedagogy and its benefits has never been so essential. We invite you to participate in our transformative online training course which explains the significance of relationships in the learning process.

Course Overview

This 20-hour course brings together experts from education and healthcare to explore relational and student-centered pedagogy.

You'll gain practical strategies to build stronger connections with students, enhancing their sense of belonging and engagement.

What you will learn

- The Importance of Relationships:
Understand how fostering strong connections improves student outcomes.
- Key Theoretical Frameworks:
Explore pedagogical theories that support inclusive education.
- Practical Strategies for Engagement:
Discover actionable strategies to implement in your teaching practice.

Engaging Perspectives

Through insights from both educators and students, this course provides a holistic perspective on how to enhance your practices.

"It's genuinely transformed how I see my own teaching practice. It helped me understand why I approach my teaching the way that I do" – Course User

Be part of a global learning community dedicated to advancing education through reflection and connection.

Sign up now and start your journey towards more impactful teaching.

For more information or to register, scan the
QR code or click here.

